UMASS. ARCHIVES

45/30/W6

Undercurrents is a two-hour program of music and discussion focusing on the struggles for social justice worldwide.
Country, Blues and Bluegrass is an informative and entertaining show which also includes cajun, rhythm and blues, and related indigenous American musics.
Rock 'n Roll Memory Time spotlights all the incredible styles of rock and roll music from its beginnings in post-WWII America through the British Invasion of the Sixties.
Non-Sequitor Theatre features the latest and the best new hybrids of rock 'n roll from around the world and in our backyard, with a little comedy thrown in.
Follow Meredith on a Procession Towards Learning Land for the best in new and old alternative music.
Sing About It brings you progressive folk music every Wednesday morning.
The Blues on WMUA. Blues programs are plentiful but each one has its unique qualities. Blue Bill brings you the Blues from Chicago and other places every Stormy Monday. Rockin' Dave presents Bayou Tuesday, featuring Louisiana cajun and zydeco, electric swamp music and New Orleans R&B, as well as all of your blues favorites. Ellen Miller-Mack's Blame It On The Blues features a variety of blues, early rock 'n roll, and R & B. And back by popular demand, Lisa Danforth returns to WMUA every Friday evening; a new time, the same great music.
Now's The Time, brought to you by the Everywomens Center of UMASS, presents news, music, and interviews for the women's community.
The Black Mass Communications Project (BMCP) has many programs on WMUA this semester. Mix Master Mike brings you the best in Hip-Hop and Rap & Scratch. Rockin' Renz plays a progressive mix of funk, soul and R&B. All That Jazz is a modern look at jazz. Esquire takes an interesting look at B-sides of popular songs.
We are especially proud of the return of Scotty Dread to WMUA; things just aren't complete without reggae music

Let's talk. Focus and UMASS Hotline are public affairs programs on WMUA. Focus, in its 17th year on WMUA features live debates, interviews with public figures and editorial commentary. UMASS Hotline presents issues of concern to the campus community; there are in-studio guests every Monday to take your questions and complaints. Sportsline brings you local and national sports with live guests from the sports community.
